Hempstead Jury Finds Belew Not Guilty of Arson

A Hempstead Circuit Court jury found Thomas Belew, elderly Hope man, not guilty of arson. Following the decision the court adjourned until Thursday.

The charge was filed in connection with a house fire the night of October 25 in the Belew addition, west just off of Highway 67. The house, owned by Belew, was completely destroyed.

Other action by the court: Affirmed part of a lower court judgment against Hobart Shirley and Glen Williams. The men were fined $51 and costs on a charge of possessing and transporting an illegal fishing net. The court dismissed the transporting charge but affirmed the other conviction.

Guy Goines, charged with driving while intoxicated, entered plea of guilty to reckless driving, fined $25 and costs.

Ed Watts, charged with embezzlement, dismissed on motion of prosecuting attorney.

Scheduled to be heard Thursday is the personal damage suit of Mr. and Mrs. Foy Hammons of Hope against the Capitol Transportation Co., of Little Rock. The Hope residents are seeking a total of $50,000 in damages for alleged injuries received in an accident involving a vehicle operated by the Little Rock firm.

Feels Senate to Approve Gas Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Monroney (D-Okla.) said today he is "moderately optimistic" that the natural gas bill will pass the Senate. But Sen. Potter (R-Mich.) said opponents are picking up strength. Monroney told a newsmen he was encouraged by a "much better than average attendance" at the opening of debate yesterday on the measure that would exempt natural gas producers from federal regulation. The House passed similar legislation last year.

Potter, a foe of the bill, forecast a "very close" vote. He said he thought the debate was winning over several senators who have not quite made up their minds to vote against it.

In debate that at times reached the shouting point, Monroney labeled as "the wildest sort of misrepresentation" opponents' contention that the bill would cost consumers an additional 800 million dollars a year.

Some small increase in gas prices might occur under the legislation but prices will go much higher if the bill is not passed, he argued.

Monroney said a Supreme Court decision holding that the Federal Power Commission should set producers' prices for gas sold to interstate pipelines has thrown both the producers and the commission into "a maze of red tape."

Sen. Potter (D-R.I.) opposing the bill, commented if regulation of local distributors is a good thing, as Monroney had said, it ought to be applied to producers, too.

Proponents say exorbitant field prices for gas could be prevented through a provision directing the FPC not to allow pipelines to charge off more than a "reasonable market price" for gas they buy.

Communism Still in U. S. Warns Group

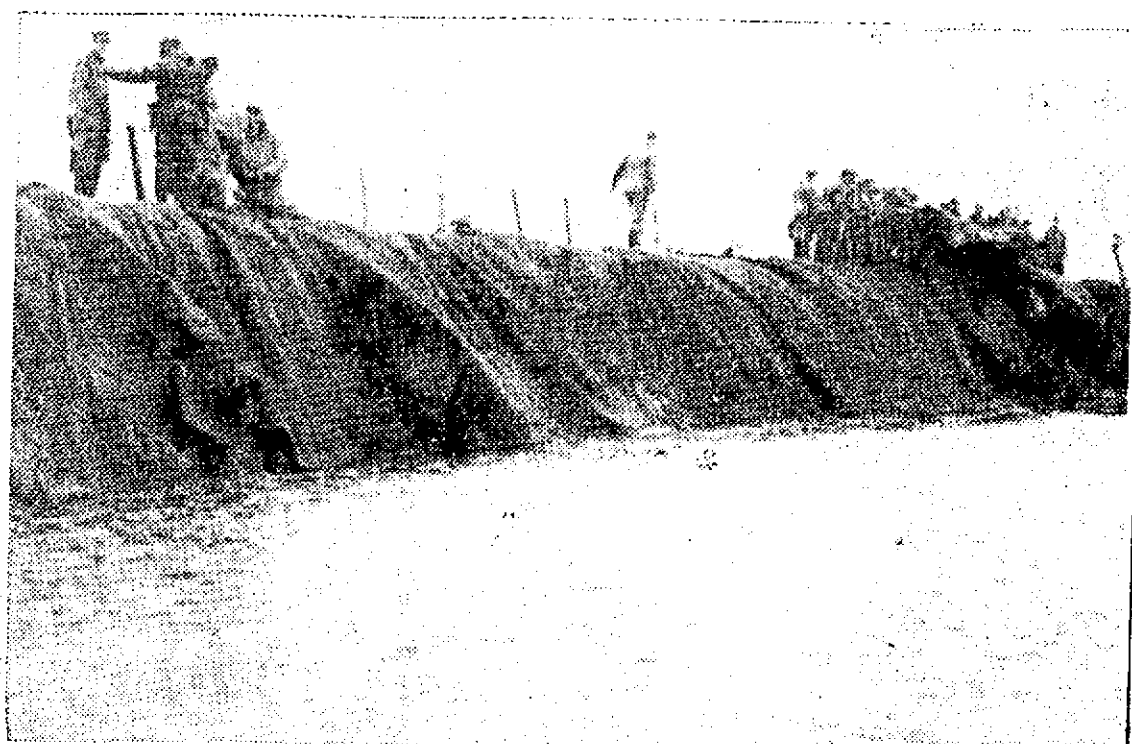

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Committee on Un-American Activities released its annual report today with a warning from the chairman that "the menace of communism in America remains unabated."

The report said among other things that "Communists have been successful in finding employment in theater, radio and television." It said the committee during 1955 "unearthed important new evidence of Communist subversion in vital area of American life."

Rep. Walter (D-Pa.), committee chairman, said important blows have been struck against the Communist conspiracy but new groups form to take the place of those exposed.

Walter said: "Too many persons, consciously or because of ignorance, give great aid to the Communists by crying that the danger from within has been eliminated. The record of the past demands that we do not diminish our vigilance."

Ike to Take Part in Rally on Friday

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower will address "Salute to Eisenhower" Republican rallies being held here and throughout the nation Friday evening.

Announcing this today, White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerly said Eisenhower may speak in person at the rally here, with his remarks carried to other allies by closed circuit or general broadcast. Or he may speak from the White House. These details have not yet been decided.

It will be the President's first participation in a public political affair since his September heart attack. Hagerly said he does not expect Eisenhower to disclose at that time whether he will seek re-election.

The President's remarks certainly will be studied carefully by politicians, however, for any possible clue as to his intentions.

Hagerly also announced that on Thursday morning the President will hold a news conference. It will be his first in Washington since last Aug. 4, about seven weeks before his heart attack.

However, Eisenhower held an informal question and answer session with newsmen at Key West, Fla., on Jan. 3 when he said "my mind is not fixed to such an extent it can't be changed" on whether to bid for another four years in the White House.

Accused Robber to Get Hearing

JONESBORO, (AP) — Preliminary hearing today was set for Friday for Arthur Cleburn Silas, accused in the robbery of a Fisk, Minn., bank last month.

Two men held up the State Bank of Fisk and got away with $34,686. No other arrests have been made.

The preliminary hearing will be held before U. S. Commissioner E. Homer McEwen here. McEwen last Friday set Silas' bond at $25,000. He was freed on bond.

Silas, 29-year-old Piggott, Ark., barber, is the father of two children.

None of the money has been recovered.

Great Explorers of Times Not Men Trying to Go to Moon But Those Who Moved to Suburbs

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK, (AP) — The greatest explorers of our time aren't the men who yearn to voyage to the moon. They are the families who have moved out to the suburbs.

Much has been made of the great migration away from the cities. Not enough attention has been paid to the great trend back to the cities by disappointed pioneers who have found suburban living not all it was cracked up to be.

Harsh reality has blated their dream of a peaceful vine-covered cottage with a rose bush at its door, far from the hurly-burly of the city. They silently and gratefully creep back to the comfort of an apartment in town like trustful pilgrims who started out for Mecca but found the journey too arduous.

As a confirmed city lover myself, I welcome them back home to refuge. But I am left with a feeling of sincere sympathy for

150 Expected at Annual CC Dinner

Hope chamber of commerce annual membership meeting and banquet will get underway promptly at 6:30 p. m. today at the high school cafeteria with a crowd of approximately 150 persons expected to attend.

Tickets are available at the chamber of commerce office and may be purchased for $1.75 each.

Principal speaker will be James G. Roberts, manager of the Southwestern division chamber of commerce of the United States, Dallas, Texas. J. I. Liebling will act as master of ceremonies.

The program: Invocation by Henry Haynes. Music, Garland school Glee Club under the direction of Mrs. Harrell Hall.

Dinner, Veal Cutlets with all the trimmings.

Introduction of directors and new officers by Harrell C. Hall, retiring president.

Introduction of guests by B. N. Holt, secretary-manager of the chamber of commerce.

Principal address: James G. Roberts of Dallas, Texas. Benediction: Hervey Holt.

Band Concert to Benefit Dimes Drive

Tuesday, January 31, at 8:15 p. m., the Hope senior and Junior High School Bands will present a joint concert in the high school auditorium.

The first half of the hour-long concert will be given by the Junior band and the second half by the Senior band. G. T. Cannon is director of both groups.

Up to last year, proceeds from the annual midwinter concert by the senior band were used to pay for band awards, but this year as in 1955 a percentage of the gate receipts will go to the March of Dimes. The amount contributed last year from receipts was $30.00.

The Junior Band has 61 members and the Senior Band 60. A whole evening of music and entertainment is promised for all. Further program details will be announced in the next few days.

Although eagles can fly away with only small weights they can kill animals they cannot lift.

The pitiable plight of the pitiful folk who are still doomed to live in the outer cultural darkness that begins where the city limits end.

Don't think that the trend back to the cities is just a mirage on my part. It is real. Thousands who fled the city to get away from it all are now returning to get back to it all.

A big new apartment house was completed here in Manhattan last year and where do you think the canny owners got their tenants? They got a lot of them by placing ads in suburban newspapers. The disillusioned suburbanites leaped at the chance to call their whole adventure off and come back to civilization.

They had decided that, while the suburbs are a great place to visit, they no longer wanted to live there.

The suburbs, of course, are a fine place to raise women and children. But many parents are making the long distance call he was making when he dozed off.

'Brink of War' Deal Strains Relations

By WILLIAM SEXTON

LONDON, (UP) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' "brink of war" interview shook Anglo-American relations but helped take the domestic political heat off Prime Minister Anthony Eden, diplomatic observers said today.

Almost overnight the interview in Life magazine drastically altered the background of Eden's forthcoming talks with President Eisenhower. The Prime Minister sails for the United States a week from today.

Eden may give the nation an advance view of the consultations in a major political speech tomorrow. Political sources said he considers it the most important speech he has made since succeeding Sir Winston Churchill as Prime Minister.

Diplomats in London believed U. S. Far East policy suffered heavily and that Eden's prestige rose because of the Dulles' statements. First British reaction was heated, and one editor called the Dulles "Brink" strategy a "dance of death."

The interview's timing so close to Eden's Washington mission puzzled officials in London and most expressed belief it was aimed at the domestic American political situation.

But whatever the motive, Eden appeared to have come out of the Trans-Atlantic difference of opinion with heightened strength. One week the big Daily Mirror published a banner headline proclaiming "Eden Is A Flop." The next week, after the Dulles interview, it said:

"Thank God the advice that was followed was Eden's advice, and not the bomb-brandishing of Dulles."

For the past month, it said in an editorial, "The Mirror has been attacking Sir Anthony Eden for his fumbling on the home front... but today the mirror salutes Eden... the whole world has been shocked by the outrageous statements made by Mr. John Foster Dulles."

The Conservative Daily Telegraph came out today in startling defense of Dulles in an editorial that might enhance Eden's popularity more while easing the red hot criticism of Dulles.

The Telegraph said the anger and regret aroused by Dulles' statements "has disquieted one cardinal fact: That in substance the main offending passage simply reiterated the West's generally accepted deterrent policy... that the West, by holding itself free to launch nuclear war if and when its vital interests are challenged, hoped to deter potential enemies from further aggression."

"If the deterrent policy is not a complete sham," it said, "it therefore stands to reason that the United States was as Mr. Dulles affirmed, brought to the brink of war" in crises over Korea, Formosa and Indochina.

It compared Dulles' "sabre rattling" with what Winston Churchill urged on the Neville Chamberlain government before World War II but said the difference is that "Dulles has a real sabre to rattle whereas Chamberlain's scabbard was empty."

Until the Dulles interview was published, Eden had been fighting both a new offensive from the Labor party and a unique undercover rebellion among elements in his own Conservative party. The attacks were based on his handling of British policy in the Middle East and economic inflation at home.

Plan Offered to Relieve Growing Water Shortage

By RICHARD C. SIZEMORE
WASHINGTON, (UP) — President Eisenhower submitted to Congress today a long-range program to overcome the nation's growing water shortages and insure a supply of 350 billion gallons a day by 1975.

In a special message to the House and Senate, Mr. Eisenhower forwarded a report on water resources policy prepared by a cabinet committee after a 20-month study. It sharply criticized "lack of cooperation and coordination" among federal agencies dealing with flood control, irrigation and other water problems.

It also called for local governments and private industry to bear more of the costs of furnishing and adequate water supply.

The report warned that the nation is experiencing the first symptoms of a water shortage, which will grow steadily more acute unless far-sighted action is taken.

It said the country is now using 200 billion gallons of water daily and will need an estimate 350 billion gallons daily by 1975.

"The policies we adopt for the development of our water resources," Mr. Eisenhower said, "will have a profound effect in the years to come upon our domestic, agricultural and industrial economy."

The report said Americans now use an average of 145 gallons of water each day from public water supplies. This "tremendous need" is expected to rise, by 1975, to 175 gallons a day, reflecting the increased use of water in homes for such purposes as air conditioning.

On top of this household use, there is the "staggering" demand for water in industry and agriculture. For example, the report noted, it requires 65,000 gallons of water to produce one ton of steel. Counting such uses, daily consumption amounts to 1,200 gallons per person.

Already, it said, "shortages" of water for domestic and agricultural use are frequent. Industry is finding it increasingly difficult to locate adequate water supplies. Many streams are seriously polluted.

While too little water is the problem in many areas, the report noted, others are occasionally devastated by too much — in the form of floods.

"Lack of adequate planning threatens to impose a water scarcity which can become a limiting factor on the growth of our cities, while at the same time flood damage in many areas continues to be great."

Fresh Cold Air Tumbles U. S. Temperatures

By The Associated Press
A fresh surge of cold air sent temperatures tumbling over broad areas of the South today, but Florida, hit by a long and damaging cold spell escaped the icy air.

Fresh weather was reported in much of the South except near the Gulf Coast and Florida. The cold air which spread south to the Gulf Coast yesterday moved southeast and eastward and extended over areas in Georgia, the Carolinas and Virginia.

Snow fell in parts of Virginia with a fall of 2 inches reported at Gordonsville. The same amount fell in Baltimore.

In Jackson, Miss., and Charlotte, N. C., the temperature was 29. At the same time, it was 60 at the Miami airport, some 15 degrees higher than 24 hours earlier.

This morning's coldest weather was in the Northern Plains with below-zero readings again today in sections of the Dakotas. It was -15 today at Grand Forks. It was 15 Freezing weather prevailed in the Great Lakes region and in the Northeast.

Light snow fell in the plains southward into Oklahoma. Snow also fell on the East Coast from Virginia northward.

AWARDED CONTRACT
PARAGOULD, (AP) — McDaniels Brothers Construction Co., of Jonesboro has been awarded a $329,200 contract for construction of an industrial building here.

The plant will be leased to Emerson Electric Manufacturing Co., of St. Louis, by the Greene County Industrial Development Corporation.

Construction will begin next week. The new plant will make small electric motors for use in home laundry equipment.

Price Tag on Ford Stock $64.50 Share

By ROBERT G. SHORTAL
NEW YORK, (UP) — A huge investment banking syndicate today placed a $64.50 a-share price tag on Ford Motor Co. stock.

The long-awaited announcement on how much the public must pay to buy an interest in the nation's biggest privately owned company came shortly before 722 brokerage firms prepared to sign final contracts for the sale of 10,200,000 shares of Ford stock.

The price was in line with the predictions of Wall Street experts. Brokers expect the Ford shares to sell at a fast clip.

At $64.50 a share, the offering of 10,200,000 shares will total $657,900,000, making it the biggest offering in history.

The stock is being sold by the Ford Foundation. It will go on sale to the public tomorrow through brokers on an "over the counter" basis. Demand for shares is expected to boost the price considerably above the original offering price.

A prospectus filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission in Washington showed that the 722 brokerage houses which will sell the stock to the public will receive $1.50 a share in underwriting discounts and commissions, totaling $15,300,000.

The foundation will actually receive, after discounts and commissions are paid, $642,600,000.

The SEC is expected to "clear" the statement sometime today, paving the way for actual sale of the shares tomorrow.

Burglar Gets $50 From the Checkered

A burglar entered Checkered Cafe sometime last night, took from $48 to $50 from the cash register and helped himself to cigars and a meal before leaving.

Investigating City Police said the burglar entered through a large exhaust fan in the back of the cafe, next, to an alley. An attempt to pry open the music box failed.

They said that apparently the burglar ate a pretty good meal and in leaving took three boxes of cigars.

Officers have one lead which is in process of being worked out and are hopeful it will develop favorably.

Truck Load of Canned Goods Burns on Highway

An Arkansas Motor Freight truck loaded with canned goods caught fire and burned about 1:30 a. m. today on Highway 67, just east of Emmet.

Arkansas State Policeman Guy Downing said the "mess" was finally cleaned up about 8:30 a. m. The officer said exploding canned goods hampered workers trying to put out the blaze and clear the highway.

The fire apparently started from a double blowout. The driver, Lawrence Beason of Little Rock, had caught a ride to Hope to secure help to change the tires. Downing said the blowout apparently left the tires so hot that they caught fire after Beason left.

An ETMF driver passing saw the fire and drove the disconnected truck from the trailer, preventing a complete loss. Others helping at the scene were Sheriff Ward of Nevada and Prescott City Police and members of the State Highway Department.

Louisiana Voters Go to the Polls

NEW ORLEANS, (AP) — All five Democratic candidates for governor or predicted victory today as Louisiana held the nation's first state primary of the presidential year.

Republicans, numbering less than 6,000, among them more than one million registered voters, scraped the rust off their primary election machinery, idle since Reconstruction, by offering two candidates for lieutenant governor and several for the Legislature.

But they don't have the ghost of a chance. The exercise is designed to strengthen the two-party system in a normally one-party state. Democratic nomination is tantamount to election.

With no presidential choice on the ballot, party leaders watched to see whether Eisenhower-backed Gov. Robert Kennon keeps control of the state Democratic party in the wake of the U. S. Supreme Court's segregation decision.

The trainmen carried Michaelene over to where the big engine rested with its motors idling. They put her down and then she saw the packages they had taken from the engine cab. One of them contained a big, beautiful doll almost as large as she was. The others were big boxes of candy, apples and nuts. Gifts from the trainmen, the card with them read:

"To the little girl beside the railroad from the Texas-New Mexico train crews."

Long Drought Taking Toll in Arkansas

By JOHN HASLAN AND BILL HUGHES

LITTLE ROCK, (UP) — The long winter drought is having a disastrous effect on upland pastures in northwest Arkansas, but is not considered a critical situation in the East Arkansas delta regions.

Agricultural and extension service experts said in a United Press survey today that pastures, first-year alfalfa crops and small grains are suffering most from the dry spell that started last October.

Livestock growers in West Arkansas face a critical shortage of water supplies. Streams and ponds are dried up, and many ranchers are having to haul water in to their acreages for thirsty cattle.

Boone County Agent John Shelton said many farmers have lost all or part of their small grain crops that were sowed last fall to be used this spring. He said that 50 per cent of alfalfa sowed for use this spring and summer has been lost.

"Many farmers in this area are in bad shape financially because of the lack of moisture and the cold weather," Shelton said.

The extension agent said the ground is dry in some areas that it can't be plowed for the spring planting of feed crops to be used during the summer.

W. H. Freyaldenhoven, agronomist for the state extension office here, said most plants in northwest Arkansas are in weakened condition. Some of them possibly could be killed off completely by a severely hard freeze.

He said old stands of alfalfa would not be hit so badly by the drought. First-year alfalfa planted last fall, however, is in "bad shape."

Freyaldenhoven, who has traveled over most of the state in recent months, said feed supplies are getting "very short."

Miles McPeck, agricultural statistician for the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service, said the drought situation is not so serious in the cotton plantations of the east Arkansas delta lands.

"The soil there has better moisture-holding capacities, and if we still get some rain in the next few months the cotton will be all right," McPeck said.

John Stephens, Crittenden county extension agent, said the normal amount of rainfall between now and April would build up enough moisture reserves to put cotton farmers in good shape. He said the same thing held true for pastures and other crops.

Rice and other irrigated crops have not been affected by the drought.

Stephens said, however, that cotton farmers had to devote much of their time in the past few months to proper land preparation because of the lack of rainfall.

Recommends Money for SPA Fund

WASHINGTON (AP) — An increase in money available for the Southwestern Power Administration's "continuing" fund — subject of sharp controversy in the last session of Congress — was recommended today by President Eisenhower.

The President's budget for the year beginning July 1 proposed that up to $6,401,000 be made available from the fund for all costs in connection with SPA's purchase of power and rental of transmission facilities from other sources. The federal agency got $6,000,000 this year for those purposes. The budget submitted to Congress a year ago included no recommendation for a continuing fund, which had been eliminated by the Republican-controlled Congress of 1954.

The continuing fund prior to that had been used to finance power purchase and transmission line rental contracts SPA set up with cooperatives in its area. In eliminating the fund, the 1954 Congress suggested that SPA deal with private utilities instead.

Chairman Cannon (D-Mo) of the House Appropriations Committee and others argued last year that federal courts had turned back a private utility suit against the SPA-cooperative contracts and urged that the continuing fund be restored to finance the disputed contracts.

The fund as such was eliminated but Congress appropriated the six million dollars for the same purposes under the heading of administration and maintenance. It limited it, however, to certain contracts with private companies and "interim" contracts with the co-ops.

Accumulated from SPA power receipts, the fund is available permanently for emergency expenses necessary to insure continuity of service but only $300,000 may be in the fund at a time for that purpose, the budget explained. It also is available in such amounts as Congress approves annually for the purchase of power and rental of transmission lines.

George Says Stay Away From Dangers

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George (D-Ga.) said today American foreign policy should be to "go as far away as we can in justice and honor from any danger of involvement in war."

George, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and chief congressional spokesman for the Democrats on international matters, thus took indirect issue with the "brink of war" statements ascribed to Secretary of State Dulles.

Democrats, including Speaker of the House Rayburn of Texas, have called "dangerous" the statements attributed to Dulles in a Life magazine article. Dulles was quoted as saying the ability to go to the verge of war and yet avoid conflict is a "necessary art" of diplomacy the secretaries has verified the accuracy of the quotes in their substance.

Republicans, including Vice President Nixon, have ranged in support of Dulles in this controversy.

The magazine article was greeted with strong criticisms and expressions of dismay in the British press.

Sen. George (D-Ga.), an advocate of tax reduction for taxpayers in the low and middle-income groups, said, "We'll have to wait until the figures are in for the first quarter of the year."

Ike Quiets Tax Demands Temporarily

By B. L. LIVINGSTONE

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower appeared today to have quieted for the present at least demands in Congress for a general tax reduction in this election year.

But his requests for an increase in appropriation drew fire from many Democrats. Republicans, on the other hand, praised his estimates that the budget will be balanced.

With Eisenhower urging "prudence" on tax slashing that would unbalance the budget, Democrats for the most part adopted a cautious attitude until first-quarter tax receipts are counted and the revenue picture jells.

Eisenhower yesterday sent to Congress a balanced budget for this year and next based on continuation of present tax rates.

His figures called for government income of $64,500,000,000 and out go of $64,270,000,000, with a surplus of 23 millions. In this bookkeeping year ending June 30, 1957, he estimated federal income at $68,865,000,000, for a surplus of 435 millions.

He told Congress the surplus should go toward reducing the national debt, and asked for "the utmost cooperation" in keeping the government in the black.

Sen. George (D-Ga.), an advocate of tax reduction for taxpayers in the low and middle-income groups, said, "We'll have to wait until the figures are in for the first quarter of the year."

USE FOR COCKLEBURS

ATHENS, Ala., (UP) — Wayne Jennings, amateur inventor, decided there must be a use for cockleburrs and offered to buy them at $4 a bushel.

"People came for miles around in cars, trucks, taxis and wagons to bring in their cockleburrs," he said. "I've got more cockleburrs than any other man in the world."

Jennings said he has invented a "cocklebur gun" to replace the old fashioned pea shooter. He said his gun shoots cocklebur weed pods 40 or 50 feet and they stick to the target.

Cuff Links Are Cartwheels Now!

By Claude Byrd

An artist in New York conceived the idea of converting an antique pair of bone buttons into some cuff links for himself. They were big as a silver dollar. And the first time he wore them, he created a sensation among his artist friends.

As a result of this innovation, the jewelry manufacturers were quick to design and produce what have been called "king-size" cuff links in silver and gold and even in imitation shell, and this has taken the country by storm.

Today we feature a full line of these over-size cuff links. There are heraldic designs, floral designs, all kinds of designs appropriate for the sportsman, initial designs — and a brand new idea known as the "His" and "Her" combination. This calls for the man and his wife to wear matching cuff links. Priced as low as $2.50 per set up to $6.00 per set, these newest cuff links are the smartest thing a well-dressed man can wear.

There are tie clips, too, to match the cuff links. These are priced from $1.50 up. Naturally we carry famous-name brands. They are the most beautifully designed and carry the most authority of style correctness. Come in and see them.

ing the discovery that schools in the suburbs are no better than those in the city, and are often just as crowded. Suburban wives complain they spend more time acting as chauffeurs for their husband and children than they do attending to their housekeeping chores.

I asked one returnee to the city why he had come back, and he said:

"I moved out to the suburbs because I thought they would be more quiet and restful and the people would be more friendly."

"Believe me, I gave it the old college try, but it didn't work out. What went wrong? Everything."

"Living in the suburbs isn't restful. It's hard work. I'm not one of those do-it-yourself fellows, but I found I had to become my own carpenter, plumber, electrician and landscape gardener."

"Just to get to my job I had to use three forms of transportation—car, train and subway. Most of the time I had to stand up on the 45-minute train ride, and I was worn out by the time I reached my office."

"Friendliness? The neighbor on my left was a Don Juan who tried to make passes at my wife every time we had a party, and in the suburbs you have to have parties all the time to keep from going crazy from boredom. The neighbor on my right was such a crackpot that after three weeks we only talked to each other through our lawyers."

"And the conversation! All the people in the suburbs talk about is lawnmowers, the price of new furniture, the latest bright sayings of their kids, and whether the new family that moved in across the street is living above its income. Gossip, gossip, gossip! They all patronize the same diaper service, so nobody has a secret."

"Culture? How can you have culture when everybody belongs to the same book club?"

The reason I came back to the city was to get a rest cure, and so I could pick my own friends again and lead my own life. Boy, am I glad I'm back! When I die I don't even want to be buried in the suburbs. I was buried there long enough. Let 'em scatter my ashes in the city streets."

Many other returned migrants share his views. They feel that, while there are a lot of things wrong with city life, there's nothing wrong with it that a five-year exile to the suburbs won't make look better.

Congress Told Farm Plan Cost Less

By OVID A. MARTIN WASHINGTON (AP) President Eisenhower told Congress today his administration's new farm program, including a soil bank designed to cut production and dispose of surpluses, will cost less than is being spent this year.

The budget message which Eisenhower sent to Congress said that on the assumption the new proposals are enacted, expenditures for agriculture and agricultural resources during the fiscal year beginning July 1 would be $3,364,000,000.

Current year spending is estimated at 12 million dollars more, or $3,376,000,000. The peak farm outlay under the present administration was $4,411,000,000 in the fiscal year which ended last June 30.

The projected new spending is merely an estimate, of course. If it should be exceeded by actual outlays, the administration would ask Congress later for more money.

Secretary of Agriculture Benson told the Senate Agriculture Committee last week he was not ready to supply dollars-and-cents details on the soil bank program.

The Administration's new farm-aid proposals would boost direct payments or subsidies to farmers by perhaps three quarters of a billion dollars. However, this outlay would be partially offset by a decrease in outlays for farm surpluses.

The Department of Interior has set aside $16,537,600 for the development of sport fishery and wild life resources in fiscal 1956.

DOROTHY DIX

Man's Viewpoint In Triangle Situation

Dear Miss Dix: Usually you present the woman's angle of a problem; perhaps you'd like to give consideration to a man's point of view.

My wife and I are in our forties. We have three children, a married daughter, a son in college and girl of five. Our home is comfortable my family's needs are well fulfilled.

For 10 years I have loved Marie. She is not a home-breaker but has a deep respect for my family and would never do anything to harm them. My love is returned but we have had no affair in the accepted sense of the word. She is the only woman I have been interested in since my marriage.

For years I was starved for love and affection. My wife was very affectionate before our marriage, but after she never even gave me a kiss or pat on the head. That is, until she became suspicious that I was in love with someone else. Then she became very loving, but alas, it was too late.

She wouldn't even go out with me before; didn't offer any excuse but told me to go ahead and have fun. Now I'm not allowed out of her sight.

My wife knows I wouldn't leave because of my great love for our little girl whom, incidentally, she threatens to take away if I don't toe the mark. Is it worth living a life of misery and unhappiness to be with my child? Quite an impasse, isn't it?

I doubt if you have a solution but thought you might like to hear another viewpoint for a change. I'm sure most of your readers have already said, "Put the other woman out of your life." But it isn't easy to exchange the woman you love for a dead love.

Answer: As a plot for a novel, your story would arouse great sympathy. As a real-life drama, it elicits only the remark you quote "Put the other woman out of your life."

The moral and ethical aspects of your problem are pretty much under control or so I assume from your letter. You may daily with the idea of leaving your wife and family, but both you and Marie are too upright to consider such a move.

Can't Control Love

We can't always control love; sometimes it comes unsought and unwelcomed. There is no wrong in loving; sometimes it can't be helped. The sin is in how much we give in to that love, how it affects other people and how the difficulties it presents are overcome.

My reasons for presenting your angle are twofold. First, you prove that integrity needn't be thrown overhead because one has fallen in love and second, it might awaken other wives to their responsibilities. Your wife is more at fault outside interest, such as fishing, hunting, prowling, or just gabbing with his friends.

I've found out that a woman can't swing on her husband's coat-tails and expect him to be happy. I, too, feel the need for a hobby. I have several: Fancy work, ceramics and entertaining. There are so many things I could do that I'm sure I'll never run out of them. Perhaps this letter will help some dissatisfied wives who complain if their husbands take a night off now and then.

Answer: Wise Woman, smart wife! Handcuffing a man is not the way to hold him. He may enjoy his evenings out, but he'll always come back to a home where love, understanding and confidence await him.

Dear Miss Dix: I have been married over eight years to a very wonderful man. He's a good provider, a loving and conscientious father to our three children. But, as with most men, he needs an

Youth in Car Sideswipes 17 Others

MINNEAPOLIS. (UP) —A 18-year-old youth who sideswiped and ricocheted off 17 cars while trying to elude police in a 90 mile an hour chase was safely in jail today. Police said the driver, Larry Anderson, and a 14-year-old boy who was riding with him escaped injury when the bullet-riddled car crashed into a ditch in Dakota county five miles south of here, a rear tire shot out. Officers counted 47 bullet holes in the rear of the stolen and wrecked car. After the mile chase, most of it through busy streets in south Minneapolis late Monday night, "This kid endangered the lives of hundreds of motorists," the dispatcher said. "The pursuing officers said they never saw so many motorists driving over curbs to get out of the way."

However, no one was hurt although one of the bullets fired by the officers struck the windshield of a car driven by Joseph Stephens.

At the present time the most urgent need of the tin mining industry of Malaya is to find new bearing areas to replace those exhausted or rapidly nearing exhaustion, stage experts report.

Just a Corpse at Twilight

By Robert Martin

Copyright 1955 by Robert Martin

She turned and looked up at me with startled blue eyes. "Oh!" she gasped. "You scared me."

THE STORY: James Bennett, investigator for the State Industrial Welfare Commission, went to Beech Tree, a small village, to find out the exact cause of Frank Oberlin's death six months ago. He has made arrangements with the undertaker, Wilbur Tweed, to hold an autopsy at his funeral parlors.

CHAPTER II

The Winchester Inn was built of red bricks which had faded through maybe 100 years to the pale color of blood diluted with water. It stood high and square in the center of a circular drive which no doubt had once been cobblestones but which was now sleek black asphalt. A black-and-white sign over the portico read, Winchester Inn—Rooms—Meals—Cocktail Lounge. On the lawn facing the square stood another sign, wired for neon. The unlighted glass tubes said simply Tourists.

I wasn't a guest, but I parked my car in the reserved area, walked back beneath the portico to the front stoop.

I stepped into the lobby. At first it, too, seemed deserted. Then I saw a movement behind the desk. I walked over. A girl sat before the switchboard her slender back toward me. She was reading a book open on her crossed knees while one small moccasined foot bobbed nervously. I stood for a moment gazing down at her. Then I said, "Pardon me."

She turned and looked up at me with startled blue eyes. Her face was small, like the rest of her: a short nose faintly dusted with freckles, a soft little lip-sticked mouth, sand-tinted eyebrows neatly plucked and now arched in surprise. "Oh!" she gasped. "You scared me."

"I'm sorry," I nodded at the book on her knee. "That must be a very absorbing story."

"It is," she held it up for me to see. The jacket illustration depicted a cemetery with the tombstones glowing red in a setting sun against a somber background of bare gnarled branches. The title was "Just a Corpse at Twilight" and the author, whose name was Pat Carstairs, smacking of a pseudonym, was unknown to me.

"Nice title," I said. "It's a pretty good book," she said seriously. I read them all, and I don't wait for the paperback reprints to come out. I'm afraid I never heard of Pat Carstairs."

"I like him," she said. No cliches, no hard-boiled stuff, no whisky and blondes and all the rest. He just writes about real people with real problems. Why, even without the murders, his books are interesting and that's the supreme test of a mystery novel don't you think?"

"I never thought much about it," I admitted, but you may have a point. Could you tell me if—?"

"Yes," she broke in, we have a room."

"I don't want a room. I just wanted to ask if Dr. Jarrett is in."

Her blue eyes narrowed suspiciously. How do you know Dr. Jarrett lives here?"

"I leaned across the desk. Don't spread it around," I said confidentially, but I've been talking Doc. I'm a private eye."

"Please," she said crisply. Are you one of the doctor's patients?"

I sighed. No, Miss. If you would just tell me. . .

Blue Ridge Hotel, Steel City. She glanced at the card and dropped it on the desk. Im sorry. Mr. Bennett, but the doctor is in Steel City and I don't know when he'll be back."

"I'll wait a while," I said, and jerked my head toward the tap room. Will it be all right if I have a quite beer?"

Certainly," she said coolly. Draft or bottled?"

"Are you the bartender, too?" Today I am. Our regular bartender is at the hospital. His wife having a baby."

"Bottled," I said. I followed her across the hall and into the bar. The girl took a bottle from an ice chest, wiped it with a towel, expertly snapped off the cap or an opener beneath the bar, and placed it before me beside a tall glass. Thirty cents," she said.

I laid a nickel and a quarter on the bar.

The girl rang up the money in a register behind the bar and turned back to me. Call me if you want me." She went through the archway to the lobby, leaving a faint perfume behind her.

Except for the muted drone of a radio upstairs, it was very quiet. I drank my beer and smoked a cigarette. A folded newspaper lay on the bar. I opened it idly, saw that it was The Beech Tree Clarion and that it was published every week. On Thursday, as most weeklies are. That would make it yesterday's paper. I glanced at the front page, noted the canned wire service stories on national and world events, as well as a variety of local items, including one which was headed, CARELESS SHOOTING A MENACE. I began to read.

Within the past week complaints have been received by Sheriff Abner Cornwallis from rural residents regarding the careless and promiscuous shooting of firearms near farm houses and outbuildings, especially in the wooded area north of Beech Tree. Stray bullets striking barns and houses have been reported, and on the Jesse Scott farm a Poland China sow was killed by a bullet. It is assumed that boys with .22 rifles are responsible and Sheriff Cornwallis has promised an investigation. Residents of Beech Tree should realize," Sheriff Cornwallis warned, that the population in the section is increasing and extreme care should be exercised by hunters and others shooting in wooded areas. Sheriff Cornwallis also asked that the parents of children with rifles caution them about—

Where's Roy?" a hoarse voice asked.

I looked up from the paper. A tall thin old man in a soiled and wrinkled seersucker suit stood in the archway. He had a red blotched complexion, thick black eyebrows and white hair showing over his ears behind a dirty and creased Panama hat.

Who's Roy?" I asked him. The bartender."

He's having a baby—I mean, his wife is."

He looked annoyed. It's time for my sundowner."

"Sundowner?" I raised my eyebrows.

"My evening drink," he snapped. Roy knows I always have my sundowner."

I said politely, Perhaps the young lady will serve you."

"Lucy?" he scoffed. Only Roy has the right touch."

Maybe it's in the refrigerator," I suggested. Why don't you look?"

"Yes," he said eagerly. That's it. Roy wouldn't forget me." He moved briskly around the bar and lifted a stainless steel lid. Ah," he exclaimed triumphantly as he placed a glass on the bar. Roy didn't forget."

The glass was tall, frosted, and contained at least a half pint of dark amber liquid. The old man carried it to a table, sat down, took a black cigar from a coat pocket, struck a match beneath the table. When the cigar was burning evenly, he settled back in the chair, blew smoke at the ceiling.

I was curious. May I ask what you're drinking, sir?"

"Sundowner," he said. Four parts bourbon, one part sweet vermouth, a generous dash of Angostura bitters. Stir gently until chilled."

He held out a thin veined hand. I'm Abner Cornwallis." As we shook hands, he said, Sit down, son."

I took a chair opposite him. Cornwallis?" I said. Sheriff Cornwallis?"

He nodded. Yep. Been sheriff of Beech Tree County for 14 years."

I grinned at him. Any relation to the general?"

He nodded. Yep. Way back, though." He squinted at me through the cigar smoke. How'd you know I was the sheriff?"

I just saw your name in the paper—about those kids being careless with rifles."

Oh, that," he sighed. Most kids around here own rifles and they go out in the hills to shoot target and snakes." He chuckled. Davy Crockett and Dan Boone stuff. No harm meant, but they forget how far a rifle bullet carries." He squinted at me. Stranger in town, huh?"

Yes. My name's Bennett."

"'Lucky!" he bawled over his shoulder. Service in the bar!"

MOSCOW, (UP)—A critic for the government newspaper Izvestia today praised the performance of the American Negro folk opera "Porgy and Bess" but found the "excessive speed of rhythm creating an over-wrought feeling."

B. Zagursky, director of the Maly theater of Leningrad, reviewed in Izvestia the performance by the All-Negro American cast of the George Gershwin opera. He predicted the tour of the first American troupe in the Soviet Union will strengthen "cultural relations between the Soviet and American peoples."

The show opened in Moscow Tuesday after a successful 11-day run in Leningrad. Last night's audience included Nikita S. Khrushchev, first secretary of the Communist party and other members of the presidium. Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin did not attend.

TOKYO, (UP)—A Japanese fisheries association was reported to have asked the United States and Japanese navies to protect its vessels from capture by Republic of Korea patrol craft.

Korean vessels have been seizing Japanese fishing boats for crossing Korea's 60-mile offshore Rheline and have threatened to sink violators of the border which is recognized only by the Seoul government.

Quick-'n-Easy

ONE-BOWL RECIPES FOR OLD-FASHIONED HOMEMADE CAKE

ONE-BOWL CAKE TIPS

Always use double-acting baking powder and soft, emulsifier-type shortening. Start heating oven to specified temperature before you begin to mix.

BANANA-NUT CAKE

SIFT together into large mixing bowl, 2 1/2 cups sifted cake flour, 1 1/2 cups Imperial Granulated Sugar,

1 1/4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon baking soda, 1 teaspoon salt. Add 3/4 cup soft shortening, 1 1/4 cups (about 3) sliced bananas and 1/2 cup buttermilk. Stir to dampen flour.

BEAT with an electric mixer at medium speed 2 minutes. Add 1/2 cup more buttermilk, 1/2 cup unbeaten eggs (2 large), 1 teaspoon vanilla. Beat 2 minutes longer. Fold in 3/4 cup chopped nuts.

POUR into 2 paper-lined 9" x 1 1/2" round pans. Bake at 350°F. 30 to 35 minutes.

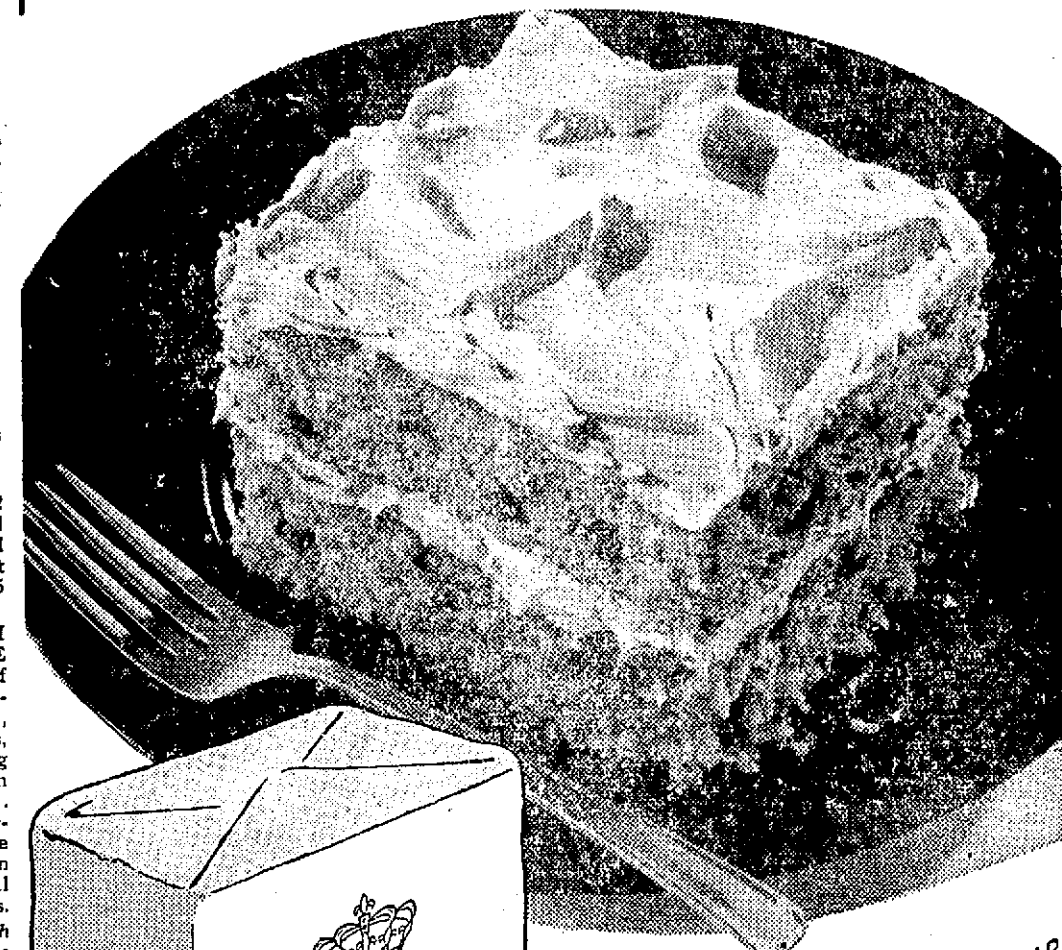

FROST WITH BROWN SUGAR 7-MINUTE FROSTING: Combine in top of double boiler, 1 1/2 cups Imperial Brown Sugar, firmly packed, 1/2 cup cold water, 2 egg whites, unbeaten. Place over boiling water (water should not touch upper part of double boiler). Beat with rotary beater or electric mixer for 7 minutes. Remove from water. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla. Continue beating until mixture stands up in stiff peaks.

MIXING BY HAND: With spoon, beat briskly for same time periods as above. Use full sweeping strokes around the bowl, cutting through the center every 5 or 10 strokes. Allow 150 strokes per minute.

GOOD BAKING NOTES
1. Assemble all ingredients and utensils before you start to mix.
2. Prepare baking pans as directed. Be sure pans are the specified size.
3. Accurate measurement of ingredients is important. Sift flour before measuring it.
4. Stagger pans in oven. Do not allow to touch each other or oven walls.
5. When baking time is up, lightly touch center of cake. If cake springs back and no imprint remains, it's done. Double check by inserting cake tester or toothpick. It must be clean when you remove it.

Death Toll in Arkansas Reaches 19

By The Associated Press

Three highway accidents, which claimed four lives, and an accidental shooting brought the Arkansas violent death toll to 21 for the week that ended Sunday midnight. Eleven deaths were attributed to accidents on the state's roads.

Two persons were killed last night when the automobile in which they were riding went out of control and overturned on Highway 70 near Greenwood.

State Police identified the dead as Floyd Grant, 21, and Carolyn Jester, 16, both of Greenwood.

Hospitalized at Hot Springs was Bill James, 27, of Amity, the driver.

Other deaths during the week included two from five, two homicides, a fatal logging accident, a fatal farm accident, a fatal fall, a suicide and two accidental shootings.

Linda Kay Anderson, 8, of Blytheville was killed accidentally by a shotgun blast yesterday. Blytheville police said the shotgun was fired by the girl's cousin, 17-year-old Larry Howard, who was shooting at a stray dog.

Paul Hanev, 24, of Swiftown was killed in a two-car collision yesterday near Walnut Ridge. Hanev was alone in his car. The driver of the other car, Alene Trotter, 30, of Morrilton, was injured seriously.

Gene Ivy, 47, of McGehee was killed early Sunday when his car smashed into a ditch alongside Highway 4 between McGehee and Arkansas City. He was driving alone.

Wallace Murry, 20-year-old Altheimer Negro, was killed Saturday night when his motorcycle and a pickup truck collided on highway 270, two miles west of Pine Bluff.

A passenger on the motorcycle, Elbert Tobias, 25, of Pine Bluff, was injured seriously.

The driver of the truck, Arlee Willis, 40, of Rison, was not hurt.

Charlie King Jr., Benton Negro, was shot to death in a cafe near Little Rock Saturday. Another Benton Negro, Silas Norris, was being held for questioning by Pul-

BUXTON, England, (UP) —A Roman Catholic priest today held "title" to a plot of land on the moon on which he plans to found the first lunar church.

Father Alfred Baldwin said he purchased the plot from the Planetary Development Corp., of New York for one dollar. He said he also reserved three seats on the first passenger rocket to the moon.

The priest said he had always been interested in planetary travel and that he decided to found a church on the moon when he found an American dollar bill in his collection box one Sunday.

Baldwin said he sent the dollar to the American company to reserve a plot large enough for a church, and they mailed me the title deeds to an acre of land in return.

He said he reserved the other two seats on the rocket ship for two 12-year-old boys who attend his church here. He said Patrick Cunningham and Peter Madden

$35½ Billion for Military Asked by Ike

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — A military budget of more than $35½ billion dollars was presented to Congress today with President Eisenhower's assurance that it is adjusted to "the increasing availability of new weapons of unprecedented strategic and tactical importance."

Eisenhower said the $35,547,000,000 proposed for the fiscal year beginning next July 1 would be about 972 million dollars more than expected spending for the current year.

Spending for guided missiles, he said, "will be the highest in our history" at more than 174 billion crews are to undergo training at the U.S. naval base.

RIO DE ANEIRO, (UP) —Antonio Sardinha Gomes died yesterday at the reputed age of 123. The farmer was survived by 14 children, 192 grandchildren, 39 great-grandchildren and two great-great-grandchildren.

BUENOS AIRES, (UP) —The Argentine dollar soared to 45.50 Argentine pesos each yesterday, the highest quotation in Argentina's history.

Foreign exchange brokers attributed the rise of 10 pesos per dollar in one week to heavy demands from importers of newsprint, plastics, auto spare parts and financial remittances of 1955 profits.

Dulles May Be Forced to Campaign

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreign policy appeared today to be assuming such proportions as a political issue that Secretary of State Dulles may be induced to take to the campaign stump.

He has said he has no present intentions of making presidential campaign speeches, but he may change his mind in the light of a furor over his latest defense of the dollars, up one third over the present year. This does not include atomic weapons. For security reasons, budgets never spell out nuclear weapons spending.

However, an index in a table on financing needs showed an estimate of $282,470,000 for nuclear weapons in the next fiscal year, compared with $267,130,000 this year and $238,164,541 last year. This money, earmarked for procurement of weapons only, does not include the billions of dollars invested in raw materials plants.

The $35,547,000,000 is proposed for the armed forces alone. What Eisenhower termed "expenditures for protection," including foreign military aid, stockpiling of critical materials and the Atomic Energy Commission, is $42,400,000,000. This represents 64 per cent of the entire national budget.

"Defense needs are still overriding and must continue to be met in full measure," Eisenhower said.

administration's handling of foreign affairs.

A Life magazine article last week quoted him as having said the nation has looked 300 years into the future in Asia three times and evened it.

Dulles was roundly criticized by a number of Democrats and some British newspapers for his quoted statement that "the ability to get to the verge without getting into war" is the necessary art of statesmanship.

Vice President Nixon, Adlai Stevenson and Harold E. Stassen joined over the weekend in the debate swirling around Dulles' words.

Stevenson, again seeking Democratic presidential nomination which he won in 1952, accused Dulles of being "willing to play Russian roulette with the life of our nation."

"Deliberate distortion," Stassen, Eisenhower's special assistant on disarmament problems, accused Stevenson of having "partisan political ends." Stassen said in a statement that "the Eisenhower-Dulles foreign policy cannot fairly be labeled by any thoughtful and responsible American as recklessly playing Russian roulette, and to so label it is harmful to the United States."
